Poetical.

A SONG FOR THE 209TH PA. VOLS.

Air:—"Uncle Sam's Farm."

The Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvanians,
The bravest in the field—
Can whip the Johnny Rebels,
Who are under General Lee.
We're the boys of Pennsylvania,
The truest and the tried;
And we love the good old Union
As the husband does his bride.

Chorus—Oh! then, come along, come along,
Make no delay;
We come from Pennsylvania,
And we are not afraid;
We're bound to beat the Johnnies
For our motto is "go ahead;"
And we'll tell the starving Rebels
Our army is well fed.

The Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvanians
Are determined not to yield—
We fought in front of Petersburg
All in the open field.
Of all the daring soldiers,
In the East or in the West,
This Pennsylvania regiment
Is the greatest and the best,
Oh! then come along, come along, &c.

And when the Keystone boys shall move,
The foe shall go before
The Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvanians,
Of the Ninth Army Corps.
The Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvanians
You'll find will never lag;
For they are all determined to Stick to the Union flag.
Oh! then come along, come along, &c.

The Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvanians
Are ready for the fray;
But we'll not forget our dearest wives,
And sweethearts far away.
But we'll often dream about them,
And wonder if they're right,
While we are in the army
Determined all to fight.
Oh! then come along, come along, &c.

We marched along to Hatcher's Run,
And Nottoway River far—
The Two Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvanians
Are fearless sons of War.
And General Grant now ever famous,
And ever famed shall be;
For he's about to lick the Rebels,
And catch old General Lee.
Oh! then come along, come along, &c.

LATER

'Twas on the second day of April, 1865,
We fought our greatest battle,
Where many lost their lives.
It was the greatest battle,
That ever I had heard;
But on the next morning we all marched
Right into Petersburg,
Oh! then come along, come along, &c.

Our last exploit was marching
Some forty miles or more;
And now I'm glad to tell you,
This cruel war is o'er.
Now all good Union soldiers,
You need not be alarmed:
For Uncle Sam is rich enough
To give us all a farm.
Oh! then come along, come along &c.

Select Story.

A BOY'S NIGHT WITH WOLVES.

BY EMERSON BENNET.

When I was quite a small lad my father, who was a farmer, removed from Ohio to Wisconsin, and settled on a good farm, but in a region of country very thinly peopled, and abounding in game and wild beasts, especially wolves and bears.

The wolves, in fact, were very troublesome, and, when pressed by hunger, in the winter season, would venture up near the dwelling and destroy any of the smaller domestic animals that might chance to be exposed, such as poultry, pigs, sheep, and calves. They were always boldest when in packs, and would then sometimes attack and destroy the larger cattle, such as horses, oxen, and cows. They would instinctively slink away from a human being, and we had never heard of any person being attacked by them in that region; but still it was generally thought that it might not be altogether safe for any one to be caught out alone during their hungry season, if surrounded by sufficient numbers to give them courage.

I was between thirteen and fourteen years of age when I met with the following fearful adventure.

One cold, wintry month, when the snow lay deep on the ground, my father said to me:

"Henry, I find we are nearly out of flour, and I propose to send you to the mill to-day with a grist, which, if possible, I want you to bring back with you—a part of it, at least. Tell Mr. Benson the miller, he will oblige me very much if he will manage to let you off in time for you to reach home before dark."

"But if he can't, father, am I to wait?" I inquired.

"Not later than sunset, at all events—nor even that long if you are afraid."

"Oh, I'm not afraid of the dark," I laughed; "and as it is nearly a level road, our old gray can do it easily in two hours."

The distance from our farm to the mill was a good ten miles, mostly over a prairie level, with a long stretch of woods a part of the way, and no settlers after the first two miles till within two miles of the mill village—or, in other words, there was a dreary space of six miles leading through a wood, without a single dwelling in the interval.

Putting the horse to the pung, I started for the mill in fine spirits, little dreaming of what a terrible ordeal I was to pass through—what mental and physical tortures I should be compelled to endure ere looking upon my dear parents again.

The day was clear when I set out, the snow bright and crisp beneath the light pung; and as I lay back in my seat, well wrapped up from the cold, gave my free horse his head, and listened to the sweet lulling music of the gently jingling bells, I experienced a dreamy delight that gave no foreboding of the awful things to come.

I reached the mill in due time; but though the miller was disposed to favor me, there were others ahead of me, from a distance also, which brought my turn quite late in the day; and as I was determined to wait for my grist, I was not ready to start home until about dusk.

Meantime the weather had changed and there were now all the signs of a fast gathering storm.

"Henry, my boy," said the miller, in a kindly tone, "I think you had better lay over till morning. It is quite certain now that we're going to have a severe snow storm very shortly, and I'm afraid you'll get caught in it. The wind is sharp and it will be sure to drift. You've got a long, lonely ride; and if you should get fast in the snow, you would have nobody to help you out, and might freeze to death."

"I thank you for your kind interest in my behalf, Mr. Benson," I replied; "but as I have a good horse and a good road before me, I think I'll start for home, which I may be able to reach before the storm sets in."

"That I'm sure you'll not do," replied the miller, with a dubious shake of the head; "but if you're determined to go, I'll not keep you any longer, and the sooner you're off the better."

"If the matter concerned nobody except myself," I rejoined, as I gathered up my reins, "I would take your advice and remain; but as my parents are expecting me, the very fact of the storm will make them painfully anxious till they see me: and so, with many thanks, I will say good-day."

As I spoke I touched my horse, and away we shot—mill, miller, and village quickly disappearing from my view as I flew over the crest of a near acclivity and struck the prairie road, which stretched homeward almost in a bee-line for ten good miles.

But fast as was the speed with which I had set out, I had not gained a mile before the storm had broken with fury.

The snow, fine and dry, fell rapidly; and being hurled forward by a fierce, howling wind, it cut the tender skin like a knife, and nearly blinded myself and beast. From the very first, too, it commenced to drift, and before I had reached the end of the second mile, it began to prove troublesome to my gallant beast causing him to labor and flounder as he attempted to dash through it at his usual speed.

The prospect before me for the next eight miles was now pretty gloomy. The kindly warning of the miller recurred to me with additional force; and while in a manner debating with myself whether I had not better turn back, I mechanically urged on my strong, fleet horse, with a kind of desperate hope that I should yet get safely through within the next few hours at the farthest.

In this way I entered the long, gloomy wood, which, in some degree, broke the force of the storm; but just as I was congratulating myself upon this slightly cheering fact, there suddenly fell upon my ear the prolonged, dismal howl of a roving wolf.

This was quickly answered by another, and another, and still by others, in different directions, showing that these wild, ferocious, though cowardly beasts, were now gathering together into a formidable pack—which result, with hunger as an incentive, might give them the courage to attack any living thing they had force enough to destroy.

My horse now became frightened as well as myself, and broke into a run. I did not attempt to check him, but merely to keep him in the road, which I could trace by a line of light that fell through the opening above—the wood, on either side, having a dark and gloomy look, well calculated to make a lad of thirteen feel timid, even without the known danger from gathering wolves.

On, on we went, at breakneck speed, the half-maddened horse occasionally striking a drift and plunging through it with such force as to make everything quiver, and fill me with terror lest something should give way and leave me at the mercy of the howling beasts, which, judging from the sounds, were every moment drawing nearer and nearer as if they had already scented us out and doomed us to destruction.

When about half way through the wood the frightened horse began to snort wildly, and spring from side to side in a manner that threatened to break or upset the pung; and on looking for the cause, I found it in the fiery eyes and dusky forms which were keeping pace with us on either side of the road.

Yes, the wolves had actually reached us, and were now waiting for some favorable opportunity to pounce upon us, and I felt that the least accident would prove fatal. They were every minute becoming bolder too; and in the bare hope of frightening them, and giving some relief to my despairing heart, I stood up, and shouted, and cracked my whip, and struck to the right and left, cutting two or three across the face, causing them to snarl and fall back a little, and with them the whole pack.

But it is was not for long. Maddened with hunger they pressed up around us again; and though they still forbore to make a direct attack, there was no telling what moment they would, and therefore I felt my life was hanging on a bare thread.

That I might have greater freedom to act, I made the reins fast, allowed the horse to take his own course, and then used my whip upon every wolf I could reach, causing many an angry snarl and growl, and sufficiently intimidating the cowardly animals to keep them from using the brute force which they possessed to destroy us at once.

And how did I feel in this terrible situation? Well, I hardly know, for when I look back to it, it is like the memory of some horrible dream. I remember I thought of home, of my dear parents, and of their horror and grief at finding their only child had come to such an untimely end; and I know I prayed a good deal, and wondered if God thought me very, very wicked, and if I should know anything after death, and what kind of a place I should be in after those awful beasts had eaten me.

The snow had not drifted so badly in the wood but that the horse could readily plunge through it; and so on and on we went, our lives but a floating vapor, with our hungry, snarling foes pressing close around us and gradually becoming more and more daring.

Oh, that lonely, awful, horrid night.

At length, still alive and uninjured, we struck the open country once more, and I now knew myself within two more miles of home.

Within two miles of home—within two miles of my loving parents—but with twenty ravenous beasts all around me thirsting for my blood! Would I ever see home again? Would the sweet voices of my loving father and mother ever again sound in my ears?

But half a mile before me was the dwelling of a neighbor. Could I even reach that? I shook and trembled at the bare hope! Could we hold out? Could I keep off the furious beasts a little longer?

Ha! another thought! Less than a quarter of a mile was an open hay-shed, and even the gaining of that might save my life.

The horse was still on a run, when suddenly he plunged into a great drift, with an awful crash, and everything seemed to give way. The shock pitched me forward, and, making a desperate spring, I landed upon his back.

The shafts of the pung were fortunately snapped by this accident, and the horse was free; but the wolves, as it seeming to comprehend that they were about to lose their prey, pressed up more fiercely and savagely than ever.

I shouted, cut and slashed all around me, and the gallant horse plunged on, like the noble beast that he was.

In another minute the welcome haven was in sight, but the fearful struggle to reach it seemed almost to take away my senses.

Nearer and nearer, and still nearer, with the growling and snarling pack all around me; and, oh! with what fervor I prayed for one minute more—only one minute more!

My prayer was answered, or I should not be alive now to tell the tale.

We dashed up to the shed, I turned the horse under it, and, as he entered, I caught hold of a beam with my hands drew myself up, and with the blessing of Heaven, swung myself into a position of temporary safety.

I thus saved myself. But alas for my noble beast! I could not save him. The ravenous crew now fell upon him, and, in spite of all his struggles, bore him to the earth, and literally tore him to pieces and devoured him directly under me.

All that long horrid night I sat upon the beam, above the reach of my growling, snarling foes, whose fiery eyeballs glared up at me, and whose voracious jaws snapped with angry desire as they occasionally leaped one over the other in a vain attempt to reach me.

At the first signs of day they slunk off, one by one, and then the danger was past.

Ah! if I were to live a thousand years, I should never forget the long, terrible night I passed with those ravenous wild beasts.

A BUSY MAN.

A Milwaukee man while in Chicago recently sent a bouquet of flowers to a relative in a Wisconsin town, and when he heard from them they had arrived four days after being shipped, wilted and dead. He was mad, and in talking it over with a railroad man, the railroader said: "You must not expect too much of an express agent. Now that bouquet has to pass—Junction, and I know the express agent there. He is the depot agent there. He is the depot agent, express agent, keeps a restaurant, is postmaster, acts as switchman, helps unload freight, checks baggage, keeps a store, works a team on the road, drives passengers to adjoining towns, is sexton in a church, buys country produce, keeps the hay scales, runs the caucuses of both political parties, goes out shooting chickens with bummers, keeps a pool table, has a mill for grinding sugar cane, and runs a hop yard, besides helping his wife run a millinery store. Now, a man that has as much business as that ought to be excused for letting a bouquet remain in the express office a week or ten days." The man who sent the bouquet said, come to think of it, they were mighty lucky to get the flowers at all, and he would apologize for any words he might have spoken in the heat of debate. What the country wants is a diversity of industries.—Peck's Sun.

Fishing in Lapland.

The water is very clear at Hamerfest, in Lapland; you may see everything that goes on among the fish. A few feet down you may see the young cod snapping at your hook, if you have one; a little lower down the coalfish, and the huge plaice, the halibut on the white sand at the bottom, in other places the starfish, as large as a plate, and purple and green shellfish of all sizes. The plaice is taken in the following manner: In calm weather, the fisherman takes a strong, fine cord, to which he has fastened a heavy spearhead, like a whale harpoon. This he holds ready over the bow of the boat, while another person paddles it forward slowly. When the fish is seen at the bottom the boat is stopped and the harpoon is suddenly dropped upon him, and thus the fish is caught. In two hours the fishermen will get a boatload. The halibut are caught with hooks. They sometimes weigh five hundred pounds, and if drawn up carelessly will overturn the boat. In many of the mountainous districts the rivers swarm with trout, the habit of which is to conceal themselves beneath the boulder rocks in the bed of the stream, venturing out only to feed at night. Men, each with a heavy hammer, will enter these waters, and strike one or two blows on the stones, when the fish run from their lurking places partly stunned and are easily caught.—Sea World.

A Warning to Bottlers.

A correspondent from an out-of-the-way mountain village in Switzerland writes as follows: "My guide amused me very much this morning by telling me that the landlord of our inn got into difficulty last night. An Englishman happened to arrive at dinner time, and expressed a wish to have a bottle of wine of some better quality than the wine of the country; in fact, he wanted something which could boast of having been some few years in bottle. The landlord said he had the very thing in the cellar, and without delay produced a bottle with a label which certified to the contents being fourteen years old. The uncorking was gone through with a proper amount of ceremony, but alas! the first thing to make its appearance was a live fly!"—London Truth.

During the Czar's recent railroad journey to Moscow, soldiers were placed at every hundred paces along the line. It must have been mighty embarrassing for the poor man to undergo such scrutiny. However, he probably was not in sight. He was doubtless put in a safe and the safe put on a flat car. Mighty pleasant way to make a summer tour.—Oil City Derrick.

THINKERS WILL READ AND HEED THIS.

When our most experienced and practical physicians widely endorse and recommend a medicine, knowing from the ingredients used, it must have an excellent general effect on the human system, and be a true strengthener of every organ of life, and recognized as nature's best assistant in curing dyspepsia, indigestion, general debility, nervous prostration, want of vitality, convalescence, fevers, chronic chills and fever, dumb ague, female diseases, broken down constitutions, ill health, weakness, debility, etc; all of which make life miserable; then indeed should the newspaper press of the country call the attention of suffering humanity to so meritorious a compound. We refer to Brown's Iron Bitters, a remedy having the largest sale in the East of any medicine ever invented, simply because it has true merit and gives permanent relief.—Herald.

YORKTOWN.

The Yorktown celebration is in every sense of the word a national occasion. Its memories are widely separated from those of the late civil war. They must serve as a bond to unite the northern and southern people more closely, for they point to bloody fights and charges against a proud foe, in which northern and southern men participated with mutual enthusiasm and marched shoulder to shoulder against the black mouthed batteries and walls of shimmering bayonets.

It was in the middle of August, 1781, when the American and the French began their combined movement which terminated in the capture of Cornwallis' army. This movement had been substituted for an attack on New York, which might not have been successful. Washington ascertained that the great French fleet under the Count de Grasse was on the South Atlantic coast and having the Count de Rochambeau and his army with him, he saw a tremendous blow could be struck Cornwallis by a combined land and naval attack. Nothing could have been done without our French allies.

People may say what they please about the French motive for helping us against England. France helped us out of a bad scrape. That is enough. If she had not helped us we would have been subjects of Queen Victoria to-day, very likely. For, even after the magnificent fighting of Greene and Morgan in the south, which weakened Cornwallis terribly he might have accomplished his purpose of subduing Virginia, had he not had the French as well as the Americans to fight on the peninsula. As it happened, Cornwallis got into a pocket. Sir Henry Clinton had not the least idea where Washington had gone when he left New York until that chieftain reached the Delaware and it was too late. Washington, Knox, the artillerist; La Fayette, Rochambeau and De Grasse did the business for Cornwallis. The battles of the Revolution ended on October 18, 1782, although a year previous there did not appear a very brilliant prospect of a triumph for the colonists. Cornwallis had been generally successful in the South; was, in fact, very successful, until Greene struck him, and he had no idea he would be driven to the wall.

Braddock, 30 years before, had been similarly confident of whipping the French. British officers "just over" at that time, even when the colonists were aiding Great Britain in her wars with France, continually expressed their contempt for the colonial militia, who did the hardest fighting. Cornwallis, although more prudent than Braddock, had a profound contempt for the American militia until Gens. Greene and Morgan showed him what they could do.

Among the American Generals who aided immensely in making the surrender of Lord Cornwallis possible, was Gen. Greene, to whom is justly ascribed military ability second only to that of Washington. Greene won the affection of Washington shortly after his arrival at headquarters in Cambridge, Mass., in July, 1775. At Brandywine, Greene, with Weedom's Virginia brigade, saved Gen. Sullivan's detachment from annihilation by a masterly march. He figured conspicuously in all the northern campaigns and it was by his counsel that Major Andre was hung instead of shot. "Hang him or set him free," were the concluding words of his opinion. When the Carolinas and Georgia fell into British hands, and the battle of Camden left the colonists in despair, Gen. Greene was chosen to repair the damage done by Cornwallis, and he showed himself the superior of Cornwallis, Tarleton and Lord Rawdon.

Greene's victories made the skies bright for the colonists; he blazed the way to Yorktown. Cornwallis would not have gone there had it not been for Greene's success in the south. A Rhode Islander, he led southern men to battle, and it was in Charleston that he received the greatest ovation of his life. The Georgians presented him with a fine plantation on the Edisto and a residence near Savannah in recognition of his services, and in 1785 he moved there with his family. The State of North Carolina presented him with 25,000 acres of land. There was no silly sectional blather then. They were all rebels, and gloried in having rebelled together against taxation and navigation laws, revenue acts, stamp acts, restraining and starving acts, and disfranchising acts; against the effort, as Burke once said, to plunge them into a "perfect uncompensated slavery by joining together the restraints of an universal, internal and external monopoly with an universal, internal and external taxation."

Northern and Southern men met once again around Yorktown, with arms in their hands and blood in their eyes, seeking each his brother's life. The meeting this month of Northern and Southern soldiers at the historic old spot will mean that, fraternally mingling together, they will forget the bloody horrors of internecine strife and remember that, as their forefathers fought against the common foe, so their descendants shall be brethren in fact, co-workers in the upbuilding of the dearest interests of the country and incapable of separation through the wicked scheming of desperate men. —Louisville Courier Journal.

GRAVES OF PRESIDENTS.—The graves of the seventeen Presidents whom death has taken are widely scattered. Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Tyler sleep in different parts of Virginia. The two Adams rest in Massachusetts. Jackson, Polk and Johnson were buried in Tennessee. Van Buren and Fillmore in New York, Harrison in Indiana, Taylor in Louisiana, Pierce in New Hampshire, Buchanan in Pennsylvania, Lincoln in Illinois. Though Ohio has furnished three Presidents (Taylor having been an Ohio man), Garfield is the first to sleep in her bosom.

Horne Tooke when at Eton was one day asked by the master the reason why a certain verb governed a particular case. He answered: "I don't know." "That is impossible," said the master, "I know you are not ignorant, but obstinate." Horne, however persisted, and the master flogged. After the master quoted the rule of grammar which bore on the subject, Horne instantly replied, "I know that very well; but you did not ask the rule; you demanded the reason."

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, October 14, 1881

State elections were held on Tuesday in Ohio and Iowa. In the former State Foster, Republican, was elected by about 10,000 majority. Iowa of course went Republican. A light vote was polled in each State.

The Missouri Republican thinks we are a nation of gamblers, and it says: "The spirit of gambling which has taken possession of the country in the form of speculation in the exchanges and stock boards is enough to excite the alarm of the conservative classes."

The New York Democratic State Convention began on Tuesday last, and the Tammany and Irving halls delegations were refused admittance. This rebuke ought to satisfy John Kelly that he can no longer act as "boss" of the Democrats of New York city. Whether Kelly will support the ticket or have another deal with the Republicans, remains to be seen. Should he try the latter he may experience some difficulty in delivering the vote.

The country is going to give President Arthur fair play and a man's chance. It will wait until he does something blame-worthy before it blames him. But there will be a feeling that a blunder is not far off if Jones, of Nevada, is to be his confidential go between, conveying to the Presidential mind the conclusions of Conkling; and if that ancient relic of Grantism, Boutwell, is also deemed valuable as an advisor. It is not from such as Conkling and Boutwell that the new President will receive ideas in harmony with the spirit of the times.—Indianapolis News (Rep.)

The Democratic city and county committees of Erie, have adopted by an unanimous vote, resolutions strongly endorsing Hon. Orange Noble's integrity, party fidelity and fitness for the position of State treasurer. This action is a fitting rebuke to the Erie Herald, which personal organ of William L. Scott has seen fit to oppose Mr. Noble. There is little doubt that Mr. Noble will receive the full vote of the party, as well as the support of many of his Republican neighbors. He can and will be elected if every Democratic ballot is cast for him on the 8th of November next.

Mr. John Kelly, Tammany's chieftain, has given the usual notice that he intends to sell out his faction's vote to the opposition, unless he can have his own way. The only surprising thing about the matter is, that he is tolerated by the Democrats of New York and permitted to masquerade in the disguise of a Democrat. The sooner he is kicked out of the party, the better chance there will be for State and national victories. Honest Democrats throughout the country are becoming ashamed of belonging to a party to which triumphs are forbidden by one stubborn, despotic city politician.

The Philadelphia Press is in a high state of excitement over the election of Senator Bayard as President pro tem and has much to say about the "usurpation of power" as it is pleased to consider the action of the Democrats. The Press, like a true organ, speaks fluently of the morality and honor of the Republicans, apparently forgetful that its party cheated the people out of a President and put into the White House a man who was not elected. Anything about decency or legality comes with a bad grace from the organ of a party that committed the most outrageous political crime on record.

The New York Herald recently printed a long narrative by Guiteau detailing the circumstances that led to the murder of the President. If there was anything needed to complete the atrocity of the crime, this statement has furnished it. Public indignation has been increased by reading the miscreant's own account of his evil work. It appears that he dogged the steps of the President for weeks, seeking an opportunity to murder him. This confession of Guiteau has settled beyond a doubt all questions of his sanity. He was a cold-blooded, malicious murderer who committed the most deliberate and carefully planned homicide in the annals of crime. His own words ought to hang him.

Les us see what the Republican who votes for Wolfe strikes a blow at. 1. Cameron and the bosses in general. 2. Matthew S. Quay's ambition to be a U. S. Senator. 3. The corruption of the Pardon Board. 4. The domination of roosters in the Legislature. 5. The schemes of the select and private ring that manipulates the State Treasury. 6. The power of the Gas Trust bosses as a branch of the State machine. 7. The revival of the third term boom in Pennsylvania. 8. Bargain and sale nominations for Governor next year. 9. The perpetuation of Wm. H. Kemble's six-cent extortion. 10. The emancipation of a lot of muzzled slaves in the bondage of the House of Cameron. All these and many more objects of the same kind will be directly or indirectly attained as the result of a Republican Wolfe vote. The work could be still better accomplished by a direct vote for Noble, but still we shall be glad to see the honest Republicans come out at least half way in the direction of Wolfe.—Philadelphia Chronicle Herald.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

In a speech delivered at Titusville on Saturday night last, Mr. Wolfe, the independent Republican candidate for State Treasurer, made the specific charge that Governor Hoyt, Secretary of State M. S. Quay and Blake Walters chief clerk of the treasury under Col. Noye's speculated with the State funds and caused such a deficit that when Butler was elected treasurer, Cameron had to come forward and guarantee the amount. It is supposed that Henry W. Oliver assumed part of the responsibility and that this action on his part constituted his claim for election as United States Senator. Unless the high officials named furnish a prompt and effective refutation of this terrible charge, Mr. Wolfe's vote will be apt to swell to vast proportions. The accessions to the reformer's ranks have been large and are steadily increasing. If the machine managers do not speedily devise some plan by which to stem the current now strongly setting against them, Wolfe's vote in November will be sufficient to bury Baily out of sight. To a dispassionate observer this uprising of the Republican voters against the Cameron despotism is a most exhilarating spectacle.

Gov. Hoyt has published a card denying the allegations of Mr. Wolfe that he had speculated with the funds of the treasury.

The Doctors will Please Don't.

Our advice to medical gentlemen who are about to write treatises exposing the ignorance of the President's doctors is: Don't. The danger is that persons so inclined will expose their own ignorance, and nobody else's. None of them, with the possible exception of Dr. Boynton, has the data for making up a case; and he can have nothing of value to say unless he is prepared to charge the President's physicians with malpractice. Then his remarks should be in the shape of a criminal information, not in that of a professional dissertation for the benefit of lay readers. Could the President's life have been saved? That is the question, and the only question, in which the general public has a particle of interest. If Dr. Boynton is not prepared to take the affirmative of that question he would better say nothing, except, as an Eastern newspaper suggests, "in a professional manner to a professional audience."—Chicago Tribune (Rep.)

GUITEAU INDICTED.

The grand jury of the District of Columbia on Saturday morning returned a true bill against Charles J. Guiteau for the murder of President Garfield. The indictment embraces eleven counts and is drawn with great care and minuteness. Mr. Scoville, Guiteau's brother-in-law, has not succeeded in securing the services of another lawyer to assist in the defence, and it is probable that the Court will assign some one for that unpleasant duty. It is not known when Guiteau will be arraigned but it is not likely that much publicity will be given to the time. Mr. Scoville announces his intention of putting Guiteau upon the stand in the beginning of the case. That will create a sensation.

POLICE BRUTALITY.

In the very front rank of "the dangerous classes" in New York city stand the policemen. The brutality of these alleged guardians of the peace is the constant theme of comment by press and people. Last week an Irish policeman named Nugent deliberately shot and killed a young man named Baxter, for no better reason than because he thought Baxter was on the point of throwing a stone at him. The evidence proved even this flimsy plea to be false. Nobody ever heard of any adequate punishment inflicted on these brutal officers, but there has been so much indignation expressed at this last wanton murder that perhaps Nugent may be tried. The citizens of New York may one of these days get tired of being abused and shot by the men whose wages they pay, and may take matters into their own hands with the result of materially reducing the police force. The present state of affairs is disgraceful to the city.

In the face of the most direct evidence that young Baxter had no stone in his hand, had made no threats, nor offered resistance, a coroner's jury returned a verdict that the policeman had shot him in self defence. There is little protection for the people when juries can be found to justify murder by policemen.

SUPPORT THE TICKET.

In the present divided condition of the Republican party in this State, it is of greater importance than ever that the full Democratic vote should be polled at the coming election. The independent candidacy of Charles S. Wolfe will cost the machine faction thousands of votes, and the election of Noble will be a certainty if the full Democratic strength is exerted in his favor. Mr. Wolfe neither asks nor expects Democratic support, nor should it be awarded him. The Democrats sympathise with him and the better class of Republicans in their effort to throw off ring rule, but this sympathy ought not to be carried so far as votes are concerned. The State will undoubtedly be benefitted by the overthrow of Cameron and his followers, but Democrats must not lose sight of their own interests. Vote for Hon. Orange Noble and put an honest and capable man into the treasury to guard the people's wealth. If Mr. Wolfe's statements are true the public funds have been used for purposes of speculation and this has caused interruption to the public business. With Mr. Noble in the treasury such iniquitous deviation of the funds will become impossible. Support your own ticket, Democrats, and let Republicans work out the regeneration of their party or hopelessly divide it.

BAYARD ELECTED.

The United States Senate met in special session on Monday last, nearly all the Senators being present. The galleries were filled with spectators. The desk formerly occupied by Senator Barnside was draped with black and the desks of prominent senators were ornamented with flowers. The Senators-elect Aldrich of Rhode Island, and Miller and Lapham of New York occupied seats on the Republican side of the chamber. Senator Harris called the Senate to order and the President's proclamation convening the session was read.

Mr. Pendleton moved that Thomas F. Bayard of Delaware be chosen President pro tem. Mr. Edmunds presented the credentials of the senators elect and subsequently moved that the oath of office be administered to them. Mr. Pendleton moved to lay the motion on the table, which was carried by a vote of 36 to 34, David Davis voting with the Republicans. Mr. Edmunds renewed his motion to swear in the new Senators but it was defeated, Davis again voting with the Republicans. Mr. Edmunds then proposed that Mr. Bayard be elected for one day only, but this was not agreed to. A motion to substitute Mr. Anthony for Mr. Bayard was voted down. Davis did not vote. The original resolution was then adopted and Mr. Bayard was chosen President pro tem. Davis did not vote. Mr. Bayard was escorted to the chair and the Senate adjourned until the following day.

Senator David Davis is just too "independent" for any thing. He voted twice with the Republicans and refused to vote for either Bayard or Anthony. He is such an utterly unreliable quantity that he has earned the distrust of both parties and has the confidence of no one, except it may be Mahone.

The Democrats have acted wisely in electing Mr. Bayard. He was justly entitled to the position by virtue of long service, ability and honorable record and will make an excellent presiding officer.

At a Democratic caucus held after adjournment the question of admitting the new Senators was discussed. The Democratic members of the New York legislature protest against the admission of Lapham and Miller, and a committee was appointed to examine their credentials and report to the caucus on Tuesday.

The new Senators were sworn in on Tuesday and a committee waited upon the President to inform him that the Senate was ready to receive any communications from him. The President stated that he would send a message in writing.

OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION OF HIS NOMINATION.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3, 1881.

To the Hon. Orange Noble:

DEAR SIR:—We have been authorized by the Democratic state convention, which met at Williamsport on the 28th day of September last, to formally announce to you the action of that body in nominating you to the important office of State Treasurer of Pennsylvania.

It must be a source of gratification for you to know that your selection by the convention as a standard-bearer of the party and the representative of its principles in the present campaign was made from a large number of the most reputable gentlemen of the state, the nomination of any one of whom would have reflected credit upon the party.

It is also a fact worthy of note that in these times of political juggiery your nomination was uninfluenced by faction, corrupt combinations or boss dictation, which are ever abhorrent to Democratic ideas, but was accomplished by the representatives of the party, acting freely in the exercise of their judgment as to its best interests, and the will of the majority thus expressed, finally ratified by the unanimous voice of the convention.

With every reasonable prospect of success, and sustained as you will be by a united party, you come before the people under the most auspicious circumstances and enter upon the race without any weight or hindrance to beset your way to ultimate success.

And in the event of election we are assured that the solemn pledges made by the convention to the people, in the resolutions adopted, will be by you redeemed; that you will hold the office as a sacred trust from the people; and that the rigid administration of the finances of the state inaugurated by you will mark the end of the power and influence of the "Treasury Ring" in Pennsylvania.

Very truly your obedient servants,

GEO. W. MILLER.
GEO. MCGOWAN.
W. J. BRENNAN.
P. F. CONNOLLY.
R. E. JAMES.

REPLY.

ERIE, Oct. 10, 1881.

Messrs. Geo. W. Miller, Geo. McGowan, W. J. Brennan, P. F. Connelly and R. E. James, Committee:

GENTLEMEN:—Your letter formally notifying me of my nomination for State Treasurer by the recent Democratic state convention at Williamsport would have been answered sooner but for unavoidable absence from home.

You say truly that it is a high compliment to have been made the nominee when so many worthy gentlemen were competitors for the position. I am gratified to know that the rivalry for the nomination was of the most friendly character, both before and during the sessions of the convention, and assure you that, if the choice had fallen upon any one of the candidates, my friends and myself would have given him a ready and active support. The reflection to which you so appropriately refer that the nomination "was uninfluenced by faction, corrupt combinations or boss dictation" adds very much to my appreciation of the honor.

I accept the nomination with a full understanding of the responsibility it imposes, and pledge myself that if the confidence reposed in me by the convention is ratified by the people they shall not be disappointed in their just expectations. The Treasury will be administered as "a sacred trust from the people:" care will be taken to employ none but pure, competent and trustworthy men; the records of the office will always be open for the most rigid scrutiny; the corrupt "rings" will be discountenanced; and the constant effort will be to reduce expenses, collect the revenues impartially, and in every way possible to promote the interests of the state. Not a dollar that does not legitimately belong to me shall be taken as a part of the compensation of the office.

The platform is one of the boldest and soundest that has been adopted by a convention of any party in Pennsylvania for many years. Those portions especially which relate to the rights, duties and control of the great corporations are in accord with my life-long convictions, and I cannot doubt that they will be approved by the people. While I would not take from any corporation a single right that properly belongs to it, I insist, in common with most of the business men, farmers and mechanics of the state, that none shall be above the law, that monopolies must not be tolerated, and that the "greatest good of the greatest number" must be the supreme object of the government.

Having made no pledges of patronage during the canvass for the nomination, and being determined to continue the same policy until the close of the campaign, I will be free, in the event of my election, to make such appointments as will best advance the principles above stated. I have no enemies to punish and will know no factions in the selection of my subordinates.

With thanks to the convention and kind regards for each of the committee,

I am yours truly,
ORANGE NOBLE.

HON. S. H. YODER'S POSITION.

A representative man's opinion on other than political matters, is often of great use to his constituency. The Hon. S. H. Yoder, of Globe Mills, Pa., has thus recorded his opinion on a subject of popular interest. I have been selling St. Jacob's Oil for the last year. I have never heard a person speak of it, except as a splendid medicine, and as the great specific for rheumatic affections whether inflammatory, acute or chronic, swellings, sores, sprains, burns, wounds, etc. I sell more St. Jacob's Oil than of any other kind of liniment, and it gives universal satisfaction. I will always keep it on hand. The farmers say, that for man and beast, they find nothing to equal it.

The Democrats of New York have nominated the following ticket: Secretary of state, Wm. Purcell; comptroller, George H. Lapham; attorney general, Gen. Roswell A. Parmenter; state treasurer, Roberts Maxwell; state engineer, Thomas Evershed; judge of court of appeals, W. C. Ruger.

CATARRH.—Choking, putrid mucous accumulations are dislodged, the nasal passages cleansed, disinfected and healed, breath sweetened, smell, taste, and hearing restored, and constitutional tendency checked by Sanford's Radical Cure.

The Republicans of New York have adopted the following ticket: For Secretary of State, Gen. Jas. B. Carr, present incumbent; Comptroller, Mr. Davenport, of Steuben; Attorney General, Lesley W. Russel; for Treasurer, Jas. C. Husted; for State Engineer, Silas Zermorn; for Judge of Court of Appeals, Francis M. Ferich.

Ex-State Senator George H. Rowland has been arrested in Philadelphia and held to bail on the charge of extorting illegal fees in collecting a pension for Mary Blackmore, aged 60, of Millville, Pike county.

The highest hopes and interest of the race rest on the purity, health and strength of womanhood. We take pleasure in referring our readers to the remarkable efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in all that class of diseases from which women suffer so much.

A dispatch from London says that the workmen in the Staffordshire potteries have given notice of a demand for an increase in wages in November, and that the masters have passed a resolution resisting the demand, and that a strike must ensue. Such a strike would involve from 60,000 to 80,000 men.

PYÆMIA

FEVER SORE

What I tell you is the truth, told for no other purpose but to testify to the merits of the Cuticura Remedies. Mr. Frederick Yeaton, of this town, has been troubled for years with a Fever Sore on one of his legs. Last fall and all winter he could hardly walk a step. I induced him to take your Remedies. He has taken about four bottles Cuticura Resolvent, and used the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. His leg to-day is almost well, and he walks with ease. It was a sight to behold—black, and swollen very badly. I wish you could see his leg to-day. The change would astonish you.

GREAT BLOOD MEDICINES.

The half has not been told as to the great curative powers of the Cuticura Remedies. I have paid hundreds of dollars for medicines to cure diseases of the blood and skin, and never found anything yet to equal the Cuticura Remedies.

CHAS. A. WILLIAMS, Providence, R. I.

LIFE and DEATH of JAMES A. GARFIELD

THE COLUMBIAN.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY OCTOBER 14th, 1881.

PUBLIC SALES.

I. K. Krickbaum, administrator of Peter Appleman, deceased, offers valuable lands of said deceased, in Benton township, at private sale. See advertisement.

Garrick Mallery, Administrator of G. H. Wells, will expose real estate to public sale on the premises in Berwick on November 19.

The nights have grown decidedly cool and overcoats are in demand.

Vennor predicts a mild winter and tailors will be at once overwhelmed with orders for extra-heavy overcoats.

Pat Hester's old residence and tavern stand at Locust Gap, has been sold by the sheriff.

The county jail is without a prisoner at this time. Good evidence that Columbia county has a peaceable and law-abiding population.

The band concert and dance at Sterner's hall, last Friday evening, was well attended, and a pleasant time is reported by all who were present.

The Northern Montour Agricultural Society Society will hold their tenth annual fair at Washingtonville on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 25th, 26th and 27th.

The newest colors are the "Rose Regence," a very delicate pink; the "Stephanie," a soft silver gray, and a dull, ugly shade of olive, which is called Tunisian green.

Two lots, with good house, barn and out buildings on each, for sale, in Bloomsburg. Inquire of WILLIAM KRICKBAUM.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moyer lost their baby girl on Saturday morning last. The funeral took place on Sunday. The afflicted parents have the sympathy of their large circle of friends, in this hour of sorrow.

The recent rains have been most welcome to the farmers of the county, who are now busy seeding. The season is very backward, owing to the drought, and there will be a largely decreased acreage of wheat next year.

The chestnut crop throughout the State is small this year. The intense and long-continued heat prevented the nuts from filling and the burrs are either empty or contain dwarfed apologies for fruit.

Messrs. William Bodine, C. M. Drinker and A. Solleder went shooting a few days since and returned with five phesants and a gray squirrel. The birds were large and in fine condition—at least the one we ate answered that description.

Wilson Cole, who lives near the headwaters of Fishing Creek, brought to town last week, a fine buck, weighing 180 lbs. dressed. The venison was speedily sold to private parties for twenty cents per pound. This is the first venison of the season in Bloomsburg.

Another comet has been discovered, being the sixth seen since May 1st. No particulars have been given as to the size and brilliancy of the new visitor. Comets have been so numerous this year that only a gigantic one can now attract popular attention.

There are sixty-one trout streams in this State that the fish commission have stocked with fish, placing from one thousand to six thousand in each stream. By a law of the State, fishing in waters thus stocked is forbidden until three years after such stocking.

According to the Milford Despatch, the farmers in Pike county have done fairly this year. Rye, wheat and oats were never better and apples are so plenty that they cannot be given away. Corn, buckwheat, potatoes and hay are short, however, and will not be one-half a crop.

An intelligent and careful gentleman who has traveled through a great portion of this county recently, gives it as his opinion that there will be about 4,000 less acres seeded in wheat than the number last year. At fifteen bushels to the acre, this will represent a falling off of 60,000 bushels—no inconsiderable amount.

The Philadelphia News, printed an article on stealing door mats, and added to it, "Papers which circulate among thieves please copy." The Williamsport Sun and Banner promptly copied the article, at least so says the Pottsville Chronicle. What sort of subscribers have you, neighbor, any way?

All the Hungarian laborers at Weatherly have gone to Columbia county to work on the North and West Branch R. R., which is now being built. The majority of them have been working on the new road at Penn Haven, and the balance were employed by the Water Co., but having higher wages offered they concluded to vamoose.—Hazleton Sentinel.

Our removal to the new office, and the purchase of new type and machinery will cost us about $1500. All persons indebted to us are earnestly requested to settle without delay, so that we can meet our bills when due. We are sending statements out as rapidly as they can be prepared, and we hope no one will take offense at being asked to square accounts.

The season for profanity is close at hand—the stove pipe season, that is to say—and the faces of stove men and plumbers are wreathed in smiles. The summer has been the most exhausting known for years and the advent of cold weather will be hailed with delight, notwithstanding the annoyance of putting up stove pipe and the danger of bankruptcy from paying plumber's bills.

The friends of ex-Judge Edwin Owen Parry, in this town, will hear with sorrow that he died very suddenly of heart disease in Pottsville, on Sunday last. He was a leading member of the Schuylkill county bar, and was deeply interested for many years in church matters. For nearly fifty years he was a vestryman of Trinity church, Pottsville, and for forty years was a delegate to diocesan conventions. He was sixty-four years of age.

One marked event stands prominently on the October planetary annals. This is the opposition of Saturn, the most interesting object for study during the month. When the full moon has taken on its waning phase, the moonless nights will be glorious with starry and planetary beauty. Saturn leads the brotherhood that will shine among the clustering stars throughout the serene October nights. Trooping after him with unswerving step bright Jupiter and ruddy Mars will follow with unseen Neptune and Uranus to fill in the wavering line.

The 91st anniversary of Father Matthew was celebrated in Wilkes-Barre on Monday, by the Father Matthew societies of Luzerne county. There were large delegations present from various towns in the county. Religious services were held in St. Mary's church in the morning and in the afternoon there was a grand parade with numerous bands of music. The Mayor delivered an address, as did also other speakers. Wilkes-Barre has become a notable place for demonstrations of all kinds, both civic and military.

[Pittsburg Evening Chronicle.]

DANGERS TO IRON WORKERS.

Messrs. R. Esterbrook & Sons, City Iron Foundry, Boston, Mass., speak on this point as follows: "Two or three of our men were badly burnt in working. They were, however, immediately cured by using that valuable remedy, St. Jacob's Oil. All our men are highly pleased with it, and we shall always recommend it to those afflicted with pains or rheumatism."

FOR SALE.—A desirable building lot in Bloomsburg, corner of Main and West streets. Price reasonable, terms to suit purchaser. Inquire of Geo. E. Elwell.

A deplorably inebriated individual was consigned to the lock-up on Saturday afternoon last. He had lost all power of locomotion and was carried to the bastile and ignominiously dumped upon the floor thereof.

Lovers of peanuts will hear with sorrow that peanuts are scarce and will be higher priced. The deficiency in the crop is estimated at a million bushels and an increase in cost is inevitable. Fortunately the circus season is about over, and the affliction can be borne with comparative equanimity.

As one of the peculiarities of this most remarkable year, says the Honesdale Citizen, we would state that a second crop of red raspberries have been offered for sale in our market and the bushes are quite thick with them; also that many apple trees have blossomed the second time.

TROUBLE SAVED.

It is a remarkable fact that Thomas' Eclectric Oil is as good for internal as external use. For diseases of the lungs and throat, and for rheumatism, neuralgia, crick in the back, wounds and sores, it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand.

A mortgage for $1,500,000 has just been recorded in the Recorder's office of this county, given by the North & West Branch Railway Co. to the Fidelity Trust and Safe Deposit Company, of Philadelphia, by whom the bonds of the new road are to be placed upon the market.

F. H. Drake, Esq. Detroit, has recovered from a terrible skin humor, which covered his head, face and hands, by using Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. This is good news.

The Fire Board have fixed Friday afternoon at one o'clock as the time for inspecting the Fire Department of Bloomsburg, and the Chief Engineer has issued an order to the different companies to assemble on Market street at the hour appointed. The members of the Town Council will be the reviewing officers.

Speaking of the COLUMBIAN office soon to be moved to their new building, the Bloomsburg correspondent to the News Item says: "They will have splendid quarters." We hope they may, and plenty of them. Quarters make dollars, and plenty of them is what any newspaper can dispose of.—Berwick Independent.

The firm of Lord, Brewster & Co., newspaper advertising agents of Chicago, has dissolved, Mr. Brewster retiring. The business will be continued under the firm name of Lord & Thomas. The old firm have earned an enviable reputation for promptness and reliability in their dealings with publishers, and the new firm will undoubtedly maintain the high position they have attained.

At this season of the year many people become poisoned, either by handling or exposure to poison ivy. Generally, all sorts of remedies are tried with little immediate effect, and the poison is slowly thrown off by the process of nature. There is, however, a remedy, which is vouched for by a correspondent of an agricultural paper as a sure and speedy cure. The agent is common lime, a small piece of which should be dissolved in water and the solution applied to the affected part.

The removing of obstructions from the Susquehanna river below Wilkes-Barre, has been completed, so far as the appropriation will permit, and the results have proved quite satisfactory. Although the water is unusually low, a steamer of greater draught than ever before known on the river, is able to make regular trips. The work of deepening the channel above Wilkes-Barre is almost finished and then the boats can run from Pittston to Nanticoke without interruption. An additional appropriation will be asked from Congress to make further improvements.

The chairmen of the different political committees in Schuylkill county have entered into a formal agreement in writing, not to use any of the money entrusted to them for the purpose of paying taxes of delinquent taxpayers, or any money for naturalization papers, or for what is commonly known as poll money. The chairmen state their belief to be that it is the duty of every citizen to pay for his citizenship and for every person wishing to become a citizen, to pay the legal costs for that right. This will be bad news for the hangers-on and leeches who strive to make money at every election, but honest men will rejoice. Every county in the State should adopt this plan.

The attention of township authorities, collectors and county commissioners is called to an Act of Assembly passed during the last days of the session. The act can be found on page 45 of the general laws of 1881. It makes taxes assessed upon real estate a first lien upon which they are levied; provides for a lien docket to be kept in the Commissioners' office, which is to be a notice to the whole world, and in case a judicial sale takes place, the lien docket is to be satisfied before any money goes to the creditors. The commissioners will want a new set of books, as the act covers all township and borough as well as State and county taxes. Collectors should study the act carefully and not get caught by the penalties in section three.

It may be of service to know what the law is in Pennsylvania in regard to legal holidays. It reads as follows: "The following days, namely, the first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the fourth day of July, the twenty-fifth day of December and any day appointed or recommended by the Governor of this State or the President of the United States as a day of fasting or for the general cessation of business, shall be regarded as a legal holiday, and shall for all purposes whatsoever, as regard the presenting for payment or acceptance, and of the protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks, drafts and promissory notes, made after the passage of this act, be treated and considered as is the first day of the week commonly called Sunday."

An Iowa paper has the following to say about storing apples in a damp cellar: Dampness does not injure apples, but on the contrary some assert that it prevents them from evaporating their own water. As evaporation however, does not amount to much any way unless the temperature is very dry and warm, this claim is not very important. Some two or three years ago we remember to have seen an account in some agricultural paper of the appearance of apples that had been stored in a damp, dark cellar, and we remember that it was stated that such apples were brighter and less decayed than those which had been stored in dry cellars. If we mistake not in this same experience was related the fact that a large quantity of apples were placed in unheaded barrels and set in a cellar which had three or four inches of water in it. The barrels were set on something above the water-stones or timbers, and it was claimed that it was very seldom that apples kept so excellently.

A HIVE OF BEES.

Burdock Blood Bitters bring back health, when the body is badly disordered by impure blood. Biliousness, indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia and other bad disorders cured by Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1, trial size 10 cents.

It is fun to edit a newspaper in a town where the morning mail fails two or three times a week. If there is any important event to chronicle, such as a State election or an unusually momentous political movement, the mail is sure to fail. Ordinary expressions of wrath and disgust are not sufficient under such circumstances.

There have been so many changes in the game laws of Pennsylvania within the past six years that it is almost impossible for sportsmen to tell when they can lawfully shoot the different kinds of game. Those persons who have pamphlet laws can dig out the facts, by diligent search. It would be a blessing if the legislature were to refrain from further changes.

We acknowledge the receipt of a piece of music dedicated to Mrs. Garfield, the words by W. H. Breese and the music by Gomer Thomas, of Danville. It relates to the death of the President, and will no doubt become popular, as there is great interest taken in whatever has connection with the assassination of the Chief Magistrate.

Messrs. Schuyler & Holmes have contracts for furnishing steam heating apparatus for the new COLUMBIAN building, and for the new school house in Catawissa. They have also like contracts for buildings in Shenandoah. The reputation of this firm for excellent work is spreading rapidly through the neighboring counties.

Tumors, erysipelas, mercurial diseases, scrofula, and general debility cured by "Dr. Lindsey's Blood Searcher." oct

In order that our sportsmen may act intelligently (and under the law) we will give them a hint about the shooting of game. A year ago rabbit shooting was permitted on October 15, but this is changed. In 1878 a law was passed making it lawful to shoot partridges and rabbits on October 15, but last winter the legislature changed the law, leaving the date for the beginning of partridge shooting October 15 but establishing the legal date for shooting rabbits on November 1. Sportsmen would do well, therefore, to "stick a pin" in this.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

A gang of burglars were pretty badly fooled at Beach Haven last Friday night. They discovered an old, unused safe belonging to 'Squire D. G. Dreisbach, stored in his barn, and thinking it contained something valuable, cut a hole in the top. The safe contained but a few old papers and was unlocked. Whether the thieves discovered this or were frightened off is not known. They left, however, when they had worked through the inside lining. It is believed that they did not discover the unlocked door and were driven off by approaching day. They were doubtless amateurs at the business or they would have tried the lock.—Shickshinny Echo.

OUR NEW OFFICE.

Unlooked-for delays, non-receipt of our new press and water motor and the occurrence of sundry unexpected events made it impossible to carry out our intention to be in the new building this week. The removal will not be long delayed, as the work on the interior is nearly completed and upon the reception of the press and motor, we will soon be ready to greet our friends in larger and more convenient quarters. The labor necessary to transfer all the paraphernalia of a printing office is very great, and the best laid plans are apt to go astray. There is nothing for it but to bear the disappointment with equanimity and to promise our friends a warmer greeting when opportunity affords.

TO COLUMBIA COUNTY REPUBLICANS.

Hon. Charles S. Wolfe in his recent scorching speech, at Philadelphia, made use of the following language, in describing the methods by which the "machine" is maintained in power. His allusion to the workings of the system in minority counties is so applicable to Columbia county, that we cannot refrain from republishing his words:

But why, you ask, cannot the organization—"the machine"—be so readjusted and controlled as to correct these evils and make the instrument for representing and effecting instead of misrepresenting and subverting the party's will? I might show by numberless examples, how by all sorts of vile means and practices—by force, by fraud, by deceit, by raising of false issues, by national, State and municipal patronage, the people, especially in our larger cities and more populous, immoral and lawless communities, are defrauded of the delegates and representatives of their choice (applause); how in the minority counties, aided by the apathy of the party masses, the Postmasters, revenue officers and other government officials paid to discharge their duties, but more interested, not in the party, but in the power upon which their sinecures depend, name the delegates and see to it that they are such as will be faithful, not to the people, but to their masters (applause); how party, or rather factional organs, sustained or aided by government offices or other official patronage, sing the praises of the faithful henchmen and delude the people into the support of their worst enemies and opposition many times to their best friends (applause); how often, after party masses have secured delegates of their own choice and in their interests, as they suppose, these have been seduced—in advance, perhaps—by bribes of office, money or other benefit, to betray the confidence reposed in them.

The attention of the better class of Republicans in the county is called to the above arraignment, and we ask whether Mr. Wolfe's description is not as true as it is vivid. And whether they do not feel strongly inclined to join the ranks of the reformer, and desert the camp where they serve only as slaves to an arrogant commander.

The new Evangelical church at Moore's in Salem township, Luzerne County, will be dedicated on Sabbath the 30th of this month. Services on Saturday evening and Sunday. Several ministers from abroad will be present to assist. All are cordially invited to attend. Rev. I. M. Pines, Pastor.

"Seller's Liver Pills," have been the standard remedy for malaria, liver complaint, costiveness, etc., for fifty years. oct

The new postal law now makes the taking of a newspaper and the refusal to pay for the same, a theft, and any person guilty of such an action is liable to criminal proceedings, the same as if he had stolen goods to the amount of subscription. A New York paper has already commenced suit against several subscribers for such an offense.

THE FAIR.

On the first day of the Fair, there are few people who visit the grounds, except those who have exhibits and desire to see them properly displayed. Wednesday last was no exception to the rule, and the down-pour of rain served to deter even exhibitors from their usual visit. Matters, however, look promising. The Secretary informs us that there are fully one thousand entries made and that there is every probability of large additions to this number. The display of blooded cattle, stock generally, needle work, embroidery, canned fruits, &c., is unusually large and fine. The outlook for clear weather was not assuring on Wednesday, but the sun shone on Thursday morning and hope reappeared with the sunshine. Visitors from distant points began to arrive on Wednesday night and the hotels were filled. With favorable weather an immense crowd may be expected.

There will positively be a wedding on Saturday morning at half past ten o'clock, in the grand stand on the race track, and there is a probability of another on Friday.

The entries for the trials of speed are not many at this writing, but that is doubtless owing to the rain on Wednesday. The Secretary was busy making entries until noon on Thursday.

WALLER—BUCKALEW.

Nature gave a tearful welcome to the young couple who on Wednesday last began a matrimonial life. The rain fell in fitful showers and the air was cold and raw. So dark was the church that all the gas jets were lighted to dispel the gloom. Despite the atmospherical discomforts, there was a large attendance to witness the ceremony.

The ushers were, G. Mortimer Lewis, of Wilkes-Barre; I. Pardee, of Hazleton; George A. Clark and Nevin U. Funk, of Bloomsburg. There were four bridesmaids: Miss Lizzie Harvey, of Wilkes-Barre; Miss Jennie Wadsworth, of Town Hill; Miss Maude Freeze and Miss Mary Elwell, of Bloomsburg. The wedding party marched up the main aisle in the following order: the ushers, the bridesmaids and the bride, leaning upon the arm of her father. The bridegroom entered the chancel from the vestry room and was not supported by a best man. Hon. Charles R. Buckalew gave away the bride. Rev. Louis Zahner read the beautiful service of the church, and pronounced Levi E. Waller and Mary Alice Buckalew man and wife.

After the wedding a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, on the hill above town. Carriages were brought into requisition to convey the guests to the house. There were many visitors from distant points.

The bride wore a dress of white satin and brocaded velvet with pearl passamenterie and white rose buds, instead of the conventional orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were dressed in white mull and lace, and wore broad-brimmed hats with white plumes. Natural flowers were used for the dresses and each bridesmaid carried a basket of the same.

Mr. Gomer Thomas, of Danville, presided acceptably at the organ, and played the familiar Wedding March of Mendelssohn after the ceremony.

The bride and groom took the 4 49 train and departed on their wedding journey, Philadelphia being the first on the list of places to visit.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S BLOOD and LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening spring, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the best blood purifier ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, syphilitic diseases, Weakness of the Kidneys, all Nervous disorders and Debility. It corrects indigestion. It makes the old feel young, and the young feel gay; and will invariably drive out of the system the many ills that human flesh is heir to. A single bottle will prove to you more than its use as a health renewer, for it acts like a charm, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system. oct 22,'80lyeow

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

There is a dangerous counterfeit in circulation, purporting to be "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer." The strongest evidence of the great value of "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer" is the fact that parties knowing its efficacy try to imitate it. Each bottle of the genuine has a "fac simile" of the signature of "D. E. Decker"—the manufacturer—blown in the glass; and the "Restorer" is as clear and harmless as water, while it possesses all the component properties necessary to restore life, vigor, growth, and color to the hair. Purchase only from responsible parties. Each bottle warranted. C. E. Crittenton, New York City, Wholesale Agent. oct. 22, '80-1y are undoubtedly the cheapest and most durable fence made, is not affected by fire, wind or flood, does not cause snow drifts, takes fewer posts and stock cannot push it down. Our wire is four pointed, is made of two strands of number 12 best galvanized steel wire twisted together just enough to allow for contraction and expansion in Summer and Winter, barbs are fastened every seven inches. The use of barbed wire is no longer an experiment, as last year over one hundred thousand miles were put up. We believe our wire to be the best and cheapest now manufactured because it is made of the best steel wire and runs 15 feet to the pound having the greatest strength and visibility with the least weight of any made. Put up on spools of about 100 rods weighing about 100 pounds. Price per pound 11 cents by the spool, less quantities 11½ cents per pound.

BARBED WIRE

AGENTS WANTED for the Life, Public Services and Assassination of

A Serious Warning to our Farmers.

The following letter relates to a subject of extraordinary importance:

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: Please inform me what the smallest insects are. The worms I found in some old wheat, and the flies around the side of the granary. They begin to fly about six o'clock in the evening, and then settle down by the sides of the bin. Are they in any way connected? And will they do any harm to the wheat?"

OLD SUBSCRIBER.

We regret that the writer of the above omitted his Post-Office address in his note, because it is quite important that our readers should know from what part of the country noxious insects are received, that they may be on the lookout for the same species.

The small silky moths, of which our correspondent sends us specimens, are the parents of the worms found in his wheat; and, furthermore, they are among the most destructive insects known, being no other than the noted Angoumois grain moth (Gelechia cerealella), so named because first discovered in the province of Angoumois, France, about 150 years ago.

This insect has caused the destruction of thousands of bushels of corn, wheat and other kinds of grain in this country, and from present appearances it will soon make the keeping of grain over winter a very difficult matter in the United States, because the moths deposit their eggs on the grain in the fall soon after it is harvested, and the worms work on it all through the cold weather, as well as in summer, when stored in bins or granaries. If the Government or the farmers of this country could arrest the progress of this insect by expending $5,000,000 at this time, it would be the best investment ever made by our people.

We have been watching the progress of this pest for the past ten years, and find that it has become pretty well distributed over nearly all the grain-growing regions in both the Northern and Southern States. As early as 1732 this same grain moth was so destructive in some parts of France as to nearly cause a famine among the people, and it would not be at all strange if the same thing should soon occur in this country, as no effort is being made to check the ravages of this and several other imported grain-destroying insects.

Remove all your grain, and have it ground up or otherwise disposed of; then thoroughly fumigate your granary with sulphur, or sprinkle with carbolic acid diluted with water. Do not put any grain in the bins this season, but store it elsewhere, because every moth must either be destroyed by poison or starved out before the same building will be a safe depository for any kind of grain again.

Furthermore, your neighbors must do the same, or the moths will come from their barns to yours. Until rigorous measures are adopted, the spread and ravages of such pests cannot be prevented. Laws must be enacted by the general Government for their suppression, and then enforced to the very letter. As soon as European countries find that we are sending them infested grain, they will want no more of it at any price; and by that time our farmers will learn what it costs to harbor their enemies.—N. Y. Sun.

Deep Ploughing.

The Country Gentleman recently had an excellent article on ploughing, and as it was worthy the attention of all farmers, we give a portion of it here. Deep ploughing is not in the favor it was some years ago, and in some localities and soils it is absolutely injurious. Those who practice deep ploughing do not commend it as the grand panacea for all the evils of poor soil and imperfect culture as was common only a few years ago. Regard is and should be had to circumstances. Nobody now would think of deep ploughing on a light sand with little vegetable matter on the surface. To turn this under ten, eight, or even six inches, is to almost irreparably ruin the field. I know strong heavy soils, with clay subsoil where one deep ploughing has required years of good culture, and hundreds of loads of manure to get it into good condition for cropping. It is reasonable to suppose that this would be so. If we have manure enough to fertilize an acre to the depth of four inches it will be less than half enough to fertilize eight inches deep, for the under strata is always poorer than the upper one, unless some previous deep ploughing has reversed the natural order of things. And if it has, nature does its utmost to restore the true order. It is not only that natural manuring is always on the surface, but in dry weather and on dry soils fertility generally tends towards light and air. If the soil is always or mostly saturated with water, fertility may "leach" out. But usually the tendency is the other way. Capillary attraction brings water with all it holds in solution, to the soil. Dissolve some potash, or lime, or phosphate in water, and turn it upon loose, loamy soil until saturated. The very next day a thick crust will be found on the surface, and if this be analyzed it will show that much of the mineral has been brought up with the water and left on the surface as it evaporated. It is this tendency of minerals to the surface which causes the hardening of soil that has been heavily manured with mineral fertilizers.

Loss of Cud.

In response to a correspondent, the American Cultivator says: Loss of cud and making an artificial one are among the exploded fallacies of the day. The cow leech of the days gone by used to have a particular compound for making a cud. The fact is, from the symptoms mentioned in your letter, it is evident that your cow's stomach is out of order. You have been inflicting the very same bad practice upon your cow that human beings sometimes inflict upon themselves, that of overfeeding and with similar results. If we could understand the language of your cow, she would no doubt complain of headache, and if you go in front of her you will find that her breath does not smell sweet or natural, while her droppings are either hard or else indicate scouring. In either case, give the animal a pound of Epsom salts, two ounces of gentian and two ounces of nitre. As soon as the cow begins to feel better you may rest assured that she will commence chewing her cud. Whenever the cow stops chewing her cud she is sick, and whenever she resumes the practice she is convalescent. In conclusion, we would advise, if you ever call in a person to consult in reference to a sick cow and he talks about a lost cud or making another cud, get him out of the stable as soon as you can, and dispense with all his prescriptions.

A prisoner who has been convicted at least a half a dozen times is placed at the bar.

"Your Honor, I should like to have my case postponed for a week. My lawyer is ill."

"But you were captured with your hand in this gentleman's pocket. What can your counsel say in your defense?"

"Precisely so, your honor. That is what I am curious to know."

Trials of a City Horticulturist.

"I ain't having as good luck with my plants this year as usual," sighed Mr. Miles, as he dodged a blacking brush and contemplated the wreck of a geranium bed on which the missile landed.

"Why not?" asked a friend who had dropped around to see the garden.

"Because," replied Mr. Miles, as a boot flew past his car and knocked over a beautiful passion flower, "because when I use the hose to sprinkle the shrubbery the people up stairs can't get any water. You'd better stand under the arbor," he continued as an ink bottle hissed through the air and crashed through a rose bush. "They are doing that to attract my attention and make me turn the water off. If you should go out there you might get hurt."

"But I should think it would injure your flowers," suggested the guest.

"It don't do 'em any good," groaned Mr. Miles, eyeing an old oil can, as it ricotted through a patch of fuschias, "But what is a fellow to do? Plants must have water. By Jove! There goes my Japanese lily!" and he contemplated the soap dish that did it with a melancholy glance. "I don't see any use in that. Those folks have got all day to wash in, and yet they grudge me a few hours in the morning and a few more at night."

"Can't you make some kind of arrangements with them?"

"I haven't yet," replied Mr. Miles, turning the hosepipe toward a glorious bed of verbenas. "There is—whoo! there goes my calla!" he exclaimed, as a cuspidore mashed the fragments against the fence. "I thought a good deal of that lily, but I reckon it ain't much good now."

"But I wouldn't allow anybody to ruin my garden like that!" exclaimed the guest indignantly.

"I know, but if I make any fuss they'll cut up, all the worse," moaned Mr. Miles as a boot jack caught him in the small of the back. "That was lucky, wasn't it?" he grinned, "If it hadn't been for me—halloa! that pink has outlived its usefulness!" as a hammer flopped down on it. "What I'm most afraid of is they'll get to heaving furniture and clocks and looking glasses down here."

"Why on earth don't you turn off the water and save your flowers?"

"Can't! If I don't water 'em they'll die anyway, and I'm in hopes the folks will dislocate their arms sometimes. Holy smoke! There's my heliotrope busted!" and he gazed on the stair rod that did the damage with tearful eyes. "I've spent hundreds of dollars on this garden and I hate to see it bowled over like ten pins. There goes a dahlia, but I don't mind that so much."

"Did your folks break in your hothouse panes like that?" asked the visitor.

"Oh, I don't know!" sighed Mr. Miles. "I guess a cat fight got in there. The cats are most as bad as the family. When one ain't shying bric-a-brac the other will get up a prize row, and between 'em it puts me to expenses. Whew! that ends my tuberose!" he murmured, as a stove lid banged through it. "I guess I'll let up now, or there won't be anything left to water to-morrow."

The action of the Regulator is free from nausea or griping. It is most effective in starting the secretions of the Liver, causing the bile to act as a cathartic.
